RACE CAR DRIVER JACE MEIER PARTNERS WITH RAPPORT LEADERSHIP INTERNATIONAL

Las Vegas, NV (January 3, 2007) – Race car driver Jace Meier has agreed to partner with Rapport Leadership International to become the spokesperson for their Teen Leadership Program. Meier is a graduate of their Teen Leadership and Teen Eagle Quest class and has used this education to help him become senior class president at Spring Valley High School, member of the High School Leadership Committee, editor of the school newspaper and president of the school's DECA Chapter, in addition to other accolades and honors for his community service and racing. He presently has a grade point average of 4.313.

Rapport Leadership International was founded, and is headquartered, in Las Vegas, Nevada. They have worked with more than 10,000 organizations and have directly impacted more than 250,000 students in their 20-year history. Their approach to leadership development is performance-based involving interactive experiential processes that are proven to improve performance, both immediate and long term.

“I went through my first Rapport class at 14,” said Meier. “My parents were both Rapport graduates and had always instilled in me focus, accountability, a strong character and great communication skills. However, going through Rapport’s youth program taught me to overcome my fears and empowered me with skills I needed to be successful. I couldn’t have gotten to where I am today, in school, racing and in life, without them.”

As the kickoff to this community partnership, Meier will speak at upcoming workshops that will be offered to all Southern Nevada high school junior and seniors. These workshops will focus on goal setting and communication skills and all those that attend the course will receive a Certificate of Completion. Details on the class will be announced in late January.

“All of us at Rapport are extremely proud of Jace,” noted Michael Saletta, president and CEO of Rapport Leadership International. “His accomplishments over the past three years are unprecedented and I’ve seen younger children as well as his colleagues really respond to his talks about making responsible choices. We’re looking forward to the upcoming workshops, in addition to Jace acting as our spokesperson nationwide.”
